RYAN'S REACH

This month, we are honoring the RNS 2016-2017 award recipients and will learn about the different charitable organizations and community resource which they support. Dr. Luis Montes, a pediatric physician specializing in physical medicine and rehabilitation, is the recipient of our Physician of the Year award. His charity of choice is to the Los Angeles County Pediatric Department. Dr. Cynthia Stotts, from the department will share details about the services and programs offered. This year's Thomas Gucker Award recipient is Lily Lee-Martyn. She will be joined by representatives from Kindred Healthcare to talk about their employee support program, HOPE Fund. In addition, Lindy Michaelis from Ryan's Reach, a non-profit brain injury outreach organization and this year's recipient of RNS CARES, will share how she got involved with the TBI world and its scholarship program for TBI survivors. We will also hear firsthand from a patient's mother about how she and her son are benefiting from the support and services of Ryan's Reach. Finally, a representative from High Hopes, another non-profit brain injury organization and recipient of RNS CARES, will talk about the some of the unique characteristics of their program touching on its educational classes, pre-vocational training, and community re-entry.

Objectives of the Program:

At the end of this presentation, the attendants will be able to:

1. Identify various local community resources and their services for appropriate referral and utilization of resources.
2. Describe the various services and programs available to the pediatric community through LA Country Pediatric Department.
3. Describe the services of one of the employee assisted program available through Kindred Healthcare.

Dear Members and Friends,

March is Women's History Month and we celebrate all the incredible women who came before us. There were so many women that impacted Healthcare that I would like to mention a few as a reminder to those of us who work in this field.

In researching these women, I was amazed at how many kept following their dreams especially when huge obstacles were in their way. They are inspirations. I found the following statement posted in the Huffington Post.

"If you've received a blood transfusion, had lifesaving radiation therapy, experienced a natural birth or even lost weight by counting calories, you have used one of the many health innovations given to us by women in medicine."

Many of us have heard the names Florence Nightingale, Margret Sanger and Clara Barton but here are just a few women that are unfamiliar names who have made huge contributions to our health.

Virginia Apgar, MD developed the Apgar score, a standardized system used to evaluate the health of babies when they are born.

Selma Kaderman Dritz, Epidimeologist, collected data in San Francisco that she presented to the national Center for Disease Control and Prevention that helped shape the understanding of HIV and AIDS.

Patricia S. Goldman-Rakic, Neuroscientist, the first researcher to fully chart the frontal lobe of the brain creating a foundation for treating and grasping Schizophrenia, Alzheimer's and Parkinson's disease.

Lula Hunt Peters, MD, introduced the idea of calories and counting them as a way to lose weight and wrote a bestselling book in 1918.

We thank them and you who make a difference in this world. We also would like to thank Kenneth L. Nudleman, M.D (IME/QME), Medical Director of Breathe Diagnostics and his team for an excellent presentation on Sleep Disorders Testing and Treatments at our February meeting. Dr. Nudleman and his lovely wife were informative and quite entertaining as well. It was very interesting to see the new and surprisingly small C-PAP machines that are now available.

RNS also thanks Career Smart, Casa Colina Hospital, Continuity Care Nurses and A+ Healthcare Marketing for the lovely raffle prizes. Our March Meeting will be very interesting. Entitled "Pediatric Care and Brain Injury Community Resources", it is presented by our 2016-2017 RNS Award recipients on March 23, 2017 at Quiet Cannon in Montebello. Once again, I encourage you to attend and bring a friend. We provide CEU education, excellent networking, good luncheon and raffle prizes.
